Worse still, the space station is now under military command and General Hammond has been assigned to command the station. Commander Plank, very furious, comes out of his office and stops Zenon. Even worse, she orders Zenon to take care of her daughter, who turns out to be her old enemy, Margie, who is demanding and threatens to get her father to kick Zenon and her family off the space station if Zenon doesn't obey her. Zenon then discovers that his space station will be decommissioned due to damage to wyndum and Lutz's plot and sneaks into Earth to try to stop it after receiving a message from aliens who appear to want to meet Proto Zoa, but Margie also wants to go and sneak to earth, but makes it look like Zenon forced her to go with him. With Aunt Judy's help, the girls track down Proto Zoa, who has gone into hiding because of the dry season, and convince her to join them. With Margie, Aunt Judy, the Nebula, Orio Alien Patrol laboratory type Proto Zoa and her mother, Zenon goes to meet strangers near the moon. However, their ship runs out of fuel and they almost stumble upon their deaths on the Moon, but aliens show up to rescue them. The aliens are friendly and communicate with Zenon telepathically, reveal that they have been missing in space for three years and need the ship's navigation maps to get home, thinking it's rude to just take them. After receiving the maps, they tow the ship back to the space station, where General Hammond refuses to let up, saying the space station is too badly damaged and must be destroyed. Margie opposes him for once, but that won't be enough until the aliens return and repair the space station as a thank you for helping them. Once the space station is rescued, Commander Plank and General Hammond are assigned to command it together and Plank and Aunt Judy get married at the wedding where Proto Zoa plays, dedicating their new song to Zenon, revived with all the experience. It must also be realized that strangers tried to communicate with Zenon, not Proto Zoa, and used the broadcast of their old concert to do so.
